'A TOUCH OF CLASS'

Major education shake-up plan could see new school built in borough

by MIKE DIDYMUS

mdidymus@london.newsquest.co.uk

It could be a dream come true for north Kingston residents, if plans for a major education shake-up, including a new school, are approved next week.

The school could be built within three years under the new programme, due to be discussed at a meeting next Tuesday.

Parents living in the north of the borough have wanted a new school for years, because they saw the area as a "dead zone" for secondary education.

They have claimed children who missed out on the popular and selective Tiffin schools were forced to travel as far as Richmond to continue their education.

Kingston Council long maintained it had insufficient funds to build a new school in north Kingston, pointing out there was enough space in existing schools in the borough to accommodate pupil needs.

But new council projections for the number of school places needed in future years suggest existing schools will be close to capacity in 2014/15, the date when the authority was due to receive funding from the Government's Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme.

Given these figures, a recent announcement from the Department for Children, Schools and Families offering "ready to deliver" authorities early entry into the £144m scheme has spurred the council into action.

Patrick Leeson, the council's director for children's services, said: "It's a fantastic opportunity, a once-in-a-generation chance to transform education in the borough.

"It will be absolutely fantastic if we are into this four or five years

Site of learning: Chessington Community College was rebuilt with £27.3m of funds from the BSF Pathfinder scheme

earlier than we might have been, and the children will benefit even sooner.

"The numbers may in fact stack up for a new secondary school in north Kingston but that's only one option. We could also expand one or two popular secondary schools, but if the numbers are greater than that we would consider building a small secondary school in north Kingston."

In order to secure the windfall on offer, the executive will be asked to release £1.25m over two years and to work in collaboration with Croydon Council, due to enter the BSF programme in the next phase but deemed not "ready to deliver".

After Kingston was placed last on the list of authorities to receive BSF funding, Chessington Community College was given £27m of Pathfinder money to rebuild and is one of the country's only projects set to finish on schedule and budget.

Springboard appeal fails to emerge

A last-ditch attempt to save a centre which has given people with mental health problems a safe place to work has fallen at the first hurdle.

Councillor Mary Clark was trying to get an appeal to health secretary Alan Johnson challenging the closure of Springboard but her fellow politicians said no after being told they could scare off the charities which will pick up the pieces.

Kingston Primary Care Trust (PCT) chief executive David Smith, called to the meeting to explain the decision to pull the plug, produced a letter from Kingston Furniture Project, Kingston Voluntary Action and Mind, suggesting a delay could lead them to walk away.

Coun Paul Johnston, who was at Tuesday evening's meeting, said he was not convinced by the guarantees.

He said: "I did think very seriously about an appeal.

by DAVID LINDSELL

d.lindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

"I wouldn't want to jeopardise the relationship with Kingston Voluntary Action and other providers and run the risk of us ending up with nothing at all."

The Springboard building, which was opened in 2004, will be closed and clients evicted as soon as the PCT has made arrangements for the three charities to take on clients.

An action group, which will include carers and a representative of the people who use the centre, has been set up to ensure none of the Springboard clients suffer from the changes.

Coun Clark said: "I am going to monitor every step and make sure the proposals are put in place and they have got enough money to do it. I think it is going to cost far too much and I can't see how they are going to get the money."

NEWSbrief

FINE DINING: Da Lucio, the Surbiton restaurant which was transformed as the home for a BBC cookery competition, has now reopened under its old name. The Maple Road Italian restaurant was closed for several weeks while two contestants from BBC2's The Restaurant took it over. It has benefited from a free makeover

M&S MAKEOVER: Work has now begun to give Tolworth's Marks and Spencer store a major makeover. The shop will be expanded from 17,000sq ft to 21,000sq ft, with new clothes ranges, a bigger wine shop and an in-store bakery. The project will take until October but the shop will remain open throughout.

Men 'play-fighting' before train death'

The death of a 25-year-old Kingston University student has been investigated at an inquest this week.

A coroner heard from eye-witnesses of the moments before Tu Hioa Quang Vu fell in front of a rush-hour Piccadilly line train at Earl's Court station on November 23.

The inquest, which started on Tuesday, heard details from witness Andrew Purvis, who saw the events unfold before Mr Vu was nudged on to the tracks by rowdy youths.

Mr Purvis said: "I remember the lights of the train coming and it was then I became aware.

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

"I remember a terrible sound, like a wounded animal. I assumed it was somebody just about to die and I remember somebody saying 'stay cool Harry, stay cool'."

Mr Vu fell on the platform after being knocked by Harry Smart, one of a group of youths play-fighting on the platform at the time, the inquest heard.

Mr Smart went on the tracks after him and was left in a critical state with head and leg injuries.

Train driver Asaf Khan said he saw the five-strong group "jostling" as he drove into the station and Mr Purvis also witnessed them horsing around.

The driver described the harrowing moment as he slammed on his emergency brakes on, after seeing Mr Vu on the platform edge.

He said: "When a train has two people in front of it who are about to be hit, the thing you remember is the expressions on their faces."

Mr Vu, who lived in north London, was studying for a masters degree at Kingston University.

The inquest continues.

Burial site on the agenda

Plane sailing: RAF aircraft fly over Buckingham Palace

Royal high-flier

Kingston pilot James Thurrell helped give the Queen an official birthday to remember when he took part in a celebratory RAF flypast over Buckingham Palace on June 14.

Flight Lieutenant Thurrell led the sixth element of the flypast when he roared over the palace in a C-17 transport aircraft flanked by a pair of Tornado F3s.

The Kingston-born aviator initially joined the RAF as an air engineer, but moved into flying in 2000 and currently instructs pilots within 99 Squadron's operational conversion unit.

Colourful parade: Dancers take part in last year's Kingston Carnival

A parade of culture

by DAVID LINDSELL

d.lindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Up to a million people could be flocking to Kingston for future carnivals, if the man with the plan gets his way.

This year's Kingston Carnival will be key to securing a bright future for the event, and John Azah, head of Kingston Racial Equality Council and carnival organiser, wants businesses to lend a helping hand.

He would even consider using the sponsor's name in the carnival's title.

Last year, organisers said about 20,000 people filled the town's Market Place and Guildhall grounds to listen to music from around the world, watch a dazzling parade and taste Chinese, Thai and traditional Caribbean cuisine.

Mr Azah said: "Last year was all about celebrating 200 years of the abolition of slavery."

"The theme this year is bringing communities together to have fun. It is about pulling people into Kingston and letting our hair down."

"We are hoping to have people come to Kingston to support the carnival and to have an open mind on what is possible when they taste different cultures and different foods."

Kingston Carnival will take place on August 31, just a week after the Notting Hill carnival.

There will also be two processions this year, instead of the usual one, to give latecomers a chance to see the colour of the show. Dance and drumming workshops in the run-up will encourage young people from the university and college to take part.

For more information, visit kingstonrec.org

NEWSbrief

FALLS DAY: Kingston Council will mark the first National Falls Day on June 24 with an open day at Tolworth Hospital, including stalls on home and pavement safety, dial-a-ride services and foot care. Anyone who requires flexible transport for the event, which runs between 10am and 2pm, should call Christine Stevens on 020 8547 6114.

A BUG'S LIFE: Parents worried about head lice making a home in their children's hair have the chance to pick up a free detector comb by registering online with anti-nit company X-it. More than 250,000 free combs are available at xtheadlice.co.uk along with nit facts, case studies and testimonials from parents who have beaten the bugs.

BIKE CRIME: Kingston has been named the second worst hit place in the UK for bike crime in a report by Halifax home insurance. The figures, which exclude Kingston from top-rated London, suggested that bike theft was not as opportunistic as previously thought, with 89 per cent of bikes stolen while locked up in a public place.

DATA ABUSE: UK businesses are still failing to properly protect data on their networks from staff abuse, misuse or theft according to research funded by Chessington based company Bell Micro.

Animals book the Holiday Inn

Chessington Zoo animals will have a day out on Friday when they visit a hotel to help promote the National Year of Reading.

Macaws, iguanas and the rare Binturong bear cat will be at the Holiday Inn, Chessington, for the event.

Zookeepers will give talks on the animals, to the 50 or so children who are expected to attend and drama workshops will be available.

The safari-themed hotel have joined forces with Kingston libraries to encourage reading and bring storytelling to life.

This is the first of many events planned by the hotel, in collaboration with local libraries.

For more information call Ashley Corbett on 07734 298219.

A plucky way to help church

A leading string quartet will provide a summer evening of music in aid of the All Saints' Church appeal fund on Sunday.

The church is raising funds for a major refurbishment and congregation member Mary Munday, a professional cellist, has arranged for the Arcadia Quartet to give a special performance at the Tamesis Club, Broom Road, Teddington on June 22 at 7.30pm.

Tickets are £10 or £5 for children and are available by calling 020 8546 5964, emailing allsaintsappeal@tiscali.co.uk or visiting Hands Music Shop in Kingston Market Place.

Crash under scrutiny

Police are investigating how a police van and a VW Polo collided when officers were on the way to a fatal fire last month.

Both vehicles crashed into the front of the Queen's Head pub in Richmond Road, bending the top of a 116-year-old timber sign backwards.

The driver of the Polo was taken to hospital suffering minor injuries.

Results of a final investigation will be handed to the Crown Prosecution Service, which has up to six months to decide what action, if any, to take.

A police spokesman said: "The traffic collision is still being investigated by traffic officers and staff, involving technical downloads of data.

"This takes a few weeks to obtain and interpret.

"Decisions will be made from a traffic police perspective.

"This lengthy process is to ensure partiality and fairness."

Trees felled to stop flood

Surbiton residents have begun a fight to save trees in Fishponds park, after they were tagged to be given the chop by Kingston Council.

Ellerton Road resident Bridget Scullion has started a petition to save the five trees, angry that the council was "cutting down perfectly healthy trees in what is supposed to be a conservation area".

The trees were to be felled because their roots blocked drains and caused flooding at a sheltered housing block in Ewell Road. The flood alleviation scheme was approved by the council at a meeting on March 13. A spokesman from Kingston Council said all five trees would eventually be replaced.

Clock fixed in good time

One of the clocks in the Ancient Market Place is finally ticking again.

Town centre managers Kingstonfirst persuaded the owners of Costa Coffee to fix the clockwork and repaint the front of the building.

Lucinda Raggett, operations manager at Kingstonfirst, said: "We are pleased to see the clock working again and are grateful to Costa for responding so quickly.

"There are currently two other public clocks in the town centre that are not being maintained and Kingstonfirst hopes that it can work closely with landlords to restore these beautiful timepieces."

Convicted wife-beater hits out after night in the pub

Guilty: Brian Lloyd-Wright avoids prison after punching his wife

There was no time in prison for a Chessington man who already has six convictions for beating his wife.

Brian Lloyd-Wright punched wife Margaret Wright in the face at their home in Orchid Close on April 8, after coming home to find her watching television with another man.

Earlier that day, Kingston Magistrates' Court heard on Thursday, June 12, Mrs Wright had admitted to her husband she was having an affair.

Lloyd-Wright, 52, lashed out after an evening in the pub where he heard people gossiping about the couple.

John Shepherd, prosecuting, said Mrs Wright, when confronted by her husband, tried to get him to sit down and then pushed him on to the sofa.

Mr Shepherd told the court: "He then punched her in the face, hitting her right cheek and then sat down and contin-

Defence solicitor Miss Patel said unemployed Lloyd-Wright maintained he was the victim in the attack and simply went home to confront his wife about the affair.

Lloyd-Wright was sentenced to 18 weeks' imprisonment, suspended for 18 months.

Lead magistrate Mr Rees told Mr Lloyd-Wright: "We regard this offence as so serious it can be dealt with only by way of custody.

"This is your sixth conviction in five years for common assault where domestic violence and alcohol were involved."

Lloyd-Wright was also ordered to complete a domestic violence programme, an 18-month alcohol treatment programme and pay his wife £100 compensation.

Police are on track in bid to boost children's health

Leading athletes were lined up by Kingston police last week – to help coach the borough's youngsters.

Met-Track is a new initiative to offer sports coaching to over 300 school children which was launched at the Kingsmeadow Stadium on June 10.

During the three-day launch, which aims to promote healthy lifestyles and curb antisocial behaviour, children also heard

by ALITA HOWE

from three serving inmates at Latchmere Prison and had a drugs education session.

Children received coaching from world-class British athletes, including 400m champion Conrad Williams and European under-23 relay champion James Ellington, across disciplines such as sprinting, shot put and long jump.

The initiative was dreamed up by Superintendent John Powell from the Metropolitan Police territorial policing headquarters, who said he wanted to offer a "healthy alternative" to children who would not usually get the opportunity to participate in sport.

Superintendent Paul McGregor, of Kingston police, said: "This is a fantastic initiative especially with the build up to 2012."

The scheme will now run weekly coaching sessions at Kingsmeadow on Fridays from 4.30pm to 6pm, from June 20, which will be led by British sprinter Wade Bennett-Jackson.

Kung-fu fighter kicks up a fuss

A movie star and kickboxing champion who has appeared in films with Jackie Chan and Chuck Norris has paid a visit to a martial arts centre in Surbiton.

The Jet, real name Benny Urquidez, gave tips to fighters at Surbiton Martial Arts Centre on Saturday, June 14.

Instructor David Jenkins, 20, said: "He was a small guy and to be honest I didn't realise it was him because he had a cap on.

"He was very unassuming but really confident in who he was, and what he was doing.

"Everything he said, everyone was absolutely hooked."

Mr Urquidez, 55, started doing karate in 1974, winning numerous black belts, and last appeared as an assassin in a John Cusack film.

Unemployment figures fall again

Unemployment figures for Kingston are down again.

The latest job seekers' allowance figures for May show Kingston had 1,082 claimants – about 1 per cent of the working age population. The number of people claiming unemployment benefits this year has dropped from 1,291 people in April 2007.

A Kingston Council spokesman said:

"Kingston Council is working closely with Jobcentre Plus to ensure that this trend continues and that Kingston remains one of the best performing London boroughs."

The total number of benefit claimants, including incapacity benefit and lone parents of working age, was 7,580 people (7.2 per cent) as of November 2007, the latest figures available.

Celebrating two years of caring on the street

by ALITA HOWE

jbrucolieri@london.newsquest.co.uk

After putting in more than 4,000 hours, Kingston's illustrious Street Pastors are celebrating two successful years of helping people in need.

The Street Pastors scheme was set up on June 16, 2006, to help vulnerable people on Kingston's streets on Friday and Saturday nights.

The group works in partnership with Kingston Council, Kingston police and Kingstonfirst to reduce antisocial behaviour, violence and help people hitting the town's bars and clubs get home safely.

The scheme costs £25,000 a year to run and there are 40 street pastors with another eight currently in training.

Street Pastor co-ordinator Paul Jacobs said the team got a "great deal of satisfaction" from the work.

He said: "It is a real honour to serve the people of Kingston in this way, we are thanked and respected by the people we meet [and] we are making a real difference to those we help."

All Street Pastors team leaders are trained in first aid and the incidents they have dealt with range from handing out flip-flops to people who cannot walk after a heavy night of dancing to giving CPR.

In two years the Street Pastors have:

Helping hand: Street pastors Eddie and Estella

Deadlinepix KT18150

- Removed 10,877 bottles or glasses from the streets
- Spoken to 7,048 people
- Attended 250 incidents
- Removed two knives from the streets
- Been out for a total of 4,464 hours
- Handed out over 200 pairs of flip-flops to people struggling to walk in high heels
- Handed out 150 blankets
- Handed out six sleeping bags to the homeless

Mr Jacobs said: "For a lot of the team they have had [or will have] teenagers who go out to Kingston and this is what they would want for their kids, that someone is there to look out for them."

To donate to the Street Pastors or help, call Paul Jacobs on 020 8567 0566.

"How I Transformed My Kitchen Without Having to Buy a New One"

"My kitchen was over 10 years old and looked tatty. I desperately needed a new kitchen but didn't want the cost or upheaval. I had heard good reports of Dream Doors, who specialise in kitchen facelifts, so I decided to give them a try. What an amazing transformation!

As well as fitting brand new doors and worktops, everything was colour co-ordinated and I even gained additional cupboard space. My kitchen has been transformed in just over a day and I saved 60% of the cost of a new one!

I was under no obligation from the initial visit, and the advice and estimate I received were free of charge. There was no mess, no fuss, just plenty of friendly, helpful advice and I didn't need to pay the balance until I was completely satisfied!

Ice work: Simon Ogborn and Nick Jacques at their Apple Market café

Wherever Yogo, we will go too...

Britain's first frozen yoghurt café opened in Kingston's Apple Market last week.

Yogo is the brainchild of Simon Ogborn and Nick Jacques, who plan to open several more branches across London.

Frozen yoghurt is a celebrity craze in the US and Simon and Nick are confident it soon will be here.

Mr Ogborn said unlike some of the American products, the Yogo brand would be virtually fat free and made with organic ingredients from selected farms.

How long do you wait in PO queue?

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Post Office users are being asked to record how long they are waiting in queues in a bid to save branches and cut queuing times.

Earlier this month it was revealed customers were being forced to wait for up to half an hour at Martin's newsagent in Victoria Road, Surbiton, after the number of staff manning checkouts was reduced.

Kingston and New Malden were also reported to have long queues.

But Post Office managing director Alan Cook said the counters were currently meeting national standards and said mystery shopper inspections were used to check queuing times.

Kingston and Surbiton MP Edward Davey said: "People will be astonished to learn that Post Office thinks the queues at Surbiton, Kingston and New Malden post offices are acceptable."

"I can only think the Post Office's 'mystery shoppers', sent to check out the queues, deliberately choose the quietest times."

He has asked for the last 10 years of inspection reports of each post office in Kingston so he could see the results for himself.

"They have promised more staff at New Malden and an action plan for Kingston and Surbiton but I want to make their lives a misery until we see a change."

You can complain directly about queuing times on 08457 223344, online at postoffice.co.uk or by freepost to Royal Mail customer services, Freepost RM1 1AA. Alternatively email dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk to tell us about your experiences in queues.

Pair fined for burgling Tolworth house

Two Cobham men who burgled a Tolworth house escaped with a fine last week.

Joseph Miles, 18, and Robert Moore, 39, pleaded guilty at Kingston Magistrates' Court on June 11 to entering the house in Hook Rise South.

Miles and Moore, of Northfield Road, gained access to the house through a garden on April 1. Moore was fined £490 and Miles was fined £390.

Ex's text pest awaits fate

An Epsom man who bombarded his ex-girlfriend with up to 20 text messages a day pleaded guilty at Kingston Magistrates' Court last week to harassment.

Mark Egglestone, 32, of Scott Close, hounded Lisa Barton for six weeks after their relationship broke down in March. Miss Barton contacted police on April 18 and, despite being warned by police to leave Miss Barton alone, the contact persisted.

Liz West, prosecuting, said members of Miss Barton's family had asked Egglestone to stop but police had to intervene a further three times.

The case was adjourned for probation reports to be completed and Egglestone will be sentenced on July 3.

Surbiton Tube plans

by KERRY GROVE

kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

Plans to build an Underground line through Kingston and Surbiton to west London are due to be discussed by local business leaders next month.

Transport for London (TfL) has considered the £2billion project, which would run from Surbiton, past Wembley, to Brent Cross, but it is not yet on its list of priorities.

The West London Orbital scheme is the brainchild of West London Business, which will meet Kingston Chamber of Commerce on July 3 to decide how it can lobby TfL to make it happen.

The 25km (15.5 mile) Underground line, which would start at Surbiton and run 20 stops north, would consist of small driverless "robot" trains.

Trains would run in twin tunnels, 30m underground, with speeds getting up to 50 mph (80km). TfL has said it will not prioritise the scheme "for the foreseeable future", choosing to invest money in the existing overground lines and building the £16m Crossrail project from Maidenhead to Essex.

But Frank Wingate, chief executive of West London Business, said he was optimistic it would be taken seriously when Crossrail was completed in 2017, especially as it would cost considerably less.

He said: "This will provide people with a real public transport alternative and might do something to stop people using cars. The use of cars in west London is very high.

"It is still very much in the concept stage but we hope this is a constructive and concrete idea."

See this week's Surrey Comet for more on this story.

Get involved: Edward Davey MP (centre) is backing Kingston Volunteer Centre's campaign

Become a helping hand in scheme

As part of the nation's biggest-ever youth volunteering programme, Kingston Volunteer Centre launched its Vinolved Kingston scheme last week, with the support of local MP Edward Davey.

The programme is aimed at making it easier for people aged between 16 and 25 to volunteer, offering advice and support for young adults to find volunteering roles that suit them and ensuring they get recognition for their achievements.

The centre's big green bus made a stop at the Fountain pub, New Malden, on June 7 to launch the new programme as part of its volunteering roadshow, where young people could try their luck at scoring a goal with Fulham Football Club and help the Theatre 4 All penguins build an eco-igloo.

Edward Davey, MP for Kingston and Surbiton, said: "The great thing about volunteering is that you can have fun and help people – all at the same time."

"I was delighted to support the launch of Kingston Youth Volunteering, and hope it will be really successful."

Anyone interested in the programme should call 020 8255 8068 or email youthvolunteering@kvc.org.uk for more details.

Garden estate is growing brilliantly

by KERRY GROVE

kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

Council tenants do not have the most freedom when it comes to producing award-winning gardens but the backyards of 43 residents on one Tolworth estate are blooming.

After being sick of rejections from the Kingston in Bloom gardening awards, the residents of School Lane have come up with their own green-fingered competition, Every Leaf Counts.

Last week, 43 of the 120 gardens or balconies on the estate were given nominations ahead of the final judging for the competition next month.

They include everything from beautifully painted gnomes and blossoming pot plants to solar powered lamps and brimming hanging baskets.

Organiser Sue Harrison, of the School Lane Residents' Association, came up with the idea to prove council estates can flourish.

She said: "They want to be proud about where they live."

"We've got some tenants who have made some spectacular gardens."

Despite their effort, she said School Lane residents failed to be recognised in Kingston in Bloom last year because they were not able to drill or cut into council drain pipes or fences and did not have the space to make their own compost.

Tony Pattenden, 76, was nominated for his collection of more than 30 hand painted gnomes.

There will be four awards for best general garden, sheltered garden, balcony and container display and garden vouchers will be given as prizes. Kingston Council has given them £170 for awards and certificates.

The gardens were judged by Surbiton Councillor Nick Kilby, Kingston police sergeant Sheila Buddin, Andrew Kauffman, who does grounds maintenance for Kingston Council, and Catherine Giles from Tolworth Junior School.

The prizes will be issued at the school's community fair in September.

Cards flood in for author

by MIKE DIDYMUS

mdidymus@london.newsquest.co.uk

Huge public support has been offered to Kingston children's author Jacqueline Wilson, who apologised to her readers for being unable to make public appearances this month while she recovers from surgery.

The 62-year-old author, former children's laureate and the most borrowed author in libraries, was admitted to hospital earlier this month, for what is believed to be an operation on her heart.

She told fans via her website that she planned to spend "most of the summer r-e-l-a-x-i-n-g, getting completely better".

Ms Wilson, famous for her empathic books about the trials and tribulations of growing up, told members of her fansite that she would be going out for gentle walks in the park and short outings in the car, as well as working on her new autobiographical title Jacky's Diary.

She said: "I'm afraid I won't be giving any special talks for a while."

"I do hope you understand. I'll get back to normal as soon as possible, I promise."

The author, whose most famous works include The Illustrated Mum and The Story of Tracy Beaker, has already received about 500 get well postcards created by fans at the Hay Festival, which Ms Wilson had to pull out of due to ill health last month.

Her absence was filled by her illustrator Nick Sharratt, who spent more than two-and-a-half hours signing books before fashioning a giant envelope in which to send the pen and crayon decorated cards to Ms Wilson.

Free summer activities

Kingston Council's Active Summer 2008 catalogue was launched by the Mayor of Kingston Councillor David Berry at Old Malden Children's Centre in Sheephouse Way recently.

New activities for this year includes Summer Uni, a series of free courses for youngsters aged 13 to 19, which includes yoga, film making and beatboxing.

Parents can also find details of all the activities on offer for under fives and sessions taking place at Kingston's sports and leisure centres are also listed.

Copies of the brochure are available now and you can call 020 8547 5200 for a free copy.

Wags come out on display

Man's best friend will be showing off at the fifth annual family dog show at Hook summer fair on Saturday, June 28.

Categories include the prettiest bitch, waggiest tail, scruffiest dog and dog most like its owner categories, among others.

There are 10 classes in total, but rosettes are only awarded to the first, second and third prize winners, so there are sure to be some paw losers.

Bouncy castles, a barbecue and small amusement rides are also at the fair. The day is being held from 12.30pm at King Edward's Recreation Ground, Hook Road, and entry costs £1.50. For more information call Dawn Ross on 020 8391 5693 or email dawn.ross@blueyonder.co.uk.

Rose is expecting royalty

Prince Edward will pay a visit to the Rose Theatre when he comes to the borough for the Surbiton clock tower centenary celebrations on July 3.

The Earl of Wessex wanted to see Kingston's new theatre because of his interest in the arts and will meet at least 20 members of staff and volunteers during his one hour tour of the theatre. The prince will then visit Brooklands Museum in Weybridge.

The reason for his visit is to be guest of honour at the Surbiton clock tower celebrations, and he is expected to make a speech in recognition of his great-grandfather King Edward VII, who was on the throne when it was built.

Children from nine local schools will be involved in the event, in Claremont Gardens, and will sing the song My Grandfather's Clock for the Royal guest.

Crime writer and star striker gain honours

by DAVID LINDSELL

dlindsell@london.newsquest.co.uk

Crime writer Lynda La Plante, who lived in Kingston for many years, has been made a CBE in the Queen's birthday honours list.

Also honoured locally were Northern Ireland and Fulham striker David Healy, who was made an MBE, and leader of Surrey County Council Nick Skellett CBE.

The former chairman of Tourism Ireland, Andrew Coppel, from Esher, received a CBE for services to the tourism industry, while a former head of the UK Chemical Weapons Convention National Authority, Martin Rudduck, who lives in Worcester Park, was made an OBE.

Former colleague Melvyn Draper said Mr Rudduck was there at the beginning of the Chemical Weapons Convention – the international treaty which bans the making or using of chemical weapons.

He said: "He set up the UK's national office which works with the UK's chemical industry and our universities and researchers to make sure that all UK's civil and military operations conform with the convention."

"Martin's enthusiasm for the convention, and what it means in making the world a safer place, knows no bounds."

"He has devoted a great deal of his own time and effort to pursuing other countries to join and establish systems to meet the convention requirements."

Healy, an Esher resident who trains in Worcester Park, told the club's official website: "Without the help of my teammates and friends I wouldn't be receiving this award."

"Roy Hodgson always tells us how privileged we are to be playing football because people on the street would give their left arm to play in the Premier League and play for their country."

"So I'm very lucky indeed to receive an award like this."

Coun Skellett said he was "absolutely thrilled and delighted" with his CBE for services to local government.

He said: "This is a great honour for me personally, but it is also recognition for the tireless and outstanding work of my colleagues at Surrey County Council."

"This has come as a complete surprise but a very welcome one."

"I'm proud to have received this prestigious acknowledgement of my work in local government."

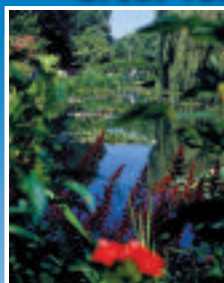

The Tory councillor, who was paid £41,655.95 in 2006/7, was first elected in 1993 and has repeatedly lobbied the Government for more money for Surrey while making huge cuts to council budgets.

For more regional honours list news, visit yourlocalguardian.co.uk

Green awards are up for grabs

A competition for green-fingered residents to champion their beautiful and sustainable gardens in the Royal borough is well under way – and there is still time to enter.

Kingston in Bloom, organised by Kingston Council, aims to promote sustainable gardening and encourage people to think about how the resources and materials they use in their gardens impact on the environment.

Kingston in Bloom is split into eight categories, including best front garden, best containers, best community space or street and best all-round sustainable garden.

There are also awards for best educational establishment, best public building or business and pubs. Cafés and restaurants can show off their green credentials with an award of their own.

Children are not left out either, with a special award for youngsters who have embraced the green spirit and grown something themselves.

by ALITA HOWE

ahowe@london.newsquest.co.uk

Carlos Queremel, community environment officer at Kingston Council, urged garden enthusiasts to enter the awards and think green about their gardens.

He said: "If we all do our bit to use resources efficiently and put our gardens at the service of local biodiversity, gardening will become an excellent way of reducing our ecological footprint."

To nominate yourself, or a friend, neighbour or relative, visit kingston.gov.uk/inbloom or write to Green Spaces, Directorate of Environmental Services, Royal borough of Kingston upon Thames, Third Floor, Guildhall 2, High Street, Kingston KT1 1EU.

The closing date is June 27.

For a copy of the council's sustainable gardening guide, call 020 8547 5929 or visit kingston.gov.uk/sustainable\_gardening

Top Tip

□ If you need to brighten a dark area in your house, consider using light tubes or sunpipes that draw natural light from your roof, down a highly reflective pipe and into your home. The light enters through a transparent dome on the roof and can be directed around your home. With prices starting from £180, they are reasonable value too.

The Big Picture

□ Britain's largest environment groups have rejected plans for a massive £15billion tidal barrage across the Severn that would provide about 5 per cent of the UK's annual electricity demand and help the Government meet climate-change targets. The coalition of 10 groups, with a membership of more than five million people, believe a barrage would be economically dubious and ecologically disastrous.

ECONews

ON YOUR BIKE: A family fun day to promote cycling and walking will be held next week. The Bike Across Cultures Event is on June 21, meeting at the Kingston Gate of Richmond Park and runs between 11am and 2pm. Free bikes will be available on the day and there will also be face painting, henna tattoos, Indian head massage and a raffle. Call Wided Cashen on 020 8893 9111 or Michelle Jayman on 020 8255 8163 for information.

RECYCLE NOW: Kingston Council has teamed up with the Recycle Now home composting campaign to offer residents discounted compost bins. The campaign subsidises the cost of the bins so residents can get a 220-litre bin for £17, instead of the usual £40. Free delivery is included. Visit recyclenow.com/ or kingston.gov.uk/compost

MOVIE MAKERS: Budding film-makers could win £4,000 to make an environmentally friendly film in a competition launched by Friends of the Earth last week. Film-makers are being asked to explore the question "Which bit of the earth are you a friend of?" in a one minute film. The competition closes on August 22 and the winning film will help support a major campaign for the environmental charity. ## If you're nappy and you know it Kingston and Merton Real Nappy Network hosted a "nappucino" on Friday to show new mothers the virtues of dropping disposable nappies.

The workshops are held on a monthly basis at New Malden Children's Centre, Burlington Road, where information and advice, as well as trial kits of real nappies, is on offer.

Using real nappies can save parents £500 over using disposables and helps alleviate the estimated £200,000 to £500,000 councils spend every year to dispose of waste caused by conventional nappies.

The next session is on July 11, with workshops at 10am and 6.30pm.

Architecture student's vision for docks

A Kingston University student has scooped a prestigious industry prize for designing a model for a sustainable community of the future.

Future Vision 08 rewards students with bright ideas about improving places.

Regine Elmenthaler, 28, who has just finished a landscape architecture diploma, claimed the top prize at an award ceremony at the Roundhouse, Camden, on June 5, for her scheme to breathe new life into the Royal Docks in east London.

Regine's vision, Revive the Docks, would bring the community together by creating a series of floating docks that extend the existing landscape to make room for markets, gardens, homes, green space and even a beach.

She said she was inspired after walking around the docks and finding them "artificial and cold".

As well as claiming the overall prize, Regine was also awarded the Future Work category prize which rewards innovative thinking about improving how communities work or are run.

Each week we will ask a question on a green-related subject. This week:

Q. What percentage of the total amount of electricity in the UK is wasted by devices left in standby mode?

Last week's answer: Sea levels in the UK are now about 10cm higher than they were in 1900. This could be caused by climate change and the Environment Agency has warned that rising sea levels increases the risk of widespread low-level flooding.

Failing schools threatened with closure

The Government has threatened 18 south-west London secondary schools with closure unless they improve.

... and closing down schools will help the results how exactly? Or am I missing something?

AI, Croydon

All of these measures are needed, and more: parental and community involvement are essential. Hope within the student and compassion will win the day for all.

Surbiton street party axed

It was meant to be the biggest street party to hit Surbiton this summer, complete with two stages, dozens of musicians and the London gospel choir.

Hmm. "Community Development Fund"? Which one exactly? I can't find any evidence to suggest a London-wide "Community Development Fund" actually exists.

I am therefore unable to determine whether it's a taxpayer-backed public fund, or a private charity. But I strongly suspect that it's the latter. So - who are we to say what they can and can't do with their money? The Arts Council is a different matter, though. But there's no suggestion that Surbiton's non-deprivation was the reason for their refusal. I certainly don't want to see an us-and-them situation developing between Surbiton and Roehampton.

Upon further investigation, it appears there is such a thing as a "Community Development Fund", however, they are administered locally by borough, district, metropolitan or unitary councils. Surbiton and Roehampton are not in the same local authority area. Last time I checked, Surbiton was in Kingston, and Roehampton in Wandsworth. They must be covered by two separate Community Development Funds and I can't see any way Surbiton and Roehampton would compete with each other.

Pete, Surbiton

Is the wrong information being given to tenants?

I have read with keen interest the recent letters pages of the Surrey Comet and Kingston Guardian, particularly those penned by Rita Leech of Chessington, concerning the issue of stock transfer of Kingston Council housing.

I attended the meeting at Kingston on May 6 as a leaseholder of Kingston Council mainly to see if "Defend Council Housing" had any new information regarding the implications of a possible stock transfer.

I regret to say that their speaker, Mr Alan Waters, did not.

During the course of the meeting, Mr Waters constantly referred to the Fourth Option. Many of your readers may well remember that this option was tabled by Unison, Defend Council Housing, Latch and a Labour councillor when the voting was taking place at the time of the proposed stock transfer in 2004.

Since that time nothing further, to my knowledge, has been heard from these organisations or people. Their heads have been well down below the parapet.

They will not accept that there is no Fourth Option. It is only a proposition they put forward some years ago to the current Government. As far as I am aware it is certainly not any part of Government thinking at present.

Mr Waters was not very well briefed before this meeting, as he admitted that he had no idea of Kingston Council's housing deficit, he was unaware that the current Housing Minister is Caroline Flint - he referred to one Yvette Cooper, who was replaced some weeks ago. He told us that Austin Mitchell MP is a supporter of Defend Council Housing. Could this be the same Austin Mitchell whose constituency in Grimsby voted for stock transfer by a large majority?

To conclude, I believe that the wrong information is being presented to the tenants and leaseholders of Kingston by these organisations.

As far as I am concerned, I have not been asked to vote for or against stock transfer by the council. The form I was sent set out the problems being faced by Kingston and here we should remember that Kingston is required to refund over £6m to each year from our rents.

The Government should be campaigning for the removal of this burden from our tenants and leaseholders - only then will we get our repairs, redecorations and improvements done without the need to consider stock transfer.

St John's memories

For many years the St John Ambulance ran a summer camp on the Isle of Wight for its teenage members in south London and north Surrey. I am now writing a history of this camp and I would be very interested to hear from any of you readers who may have attended in the 1970s, either as a cadet or adult helper.

Thanks for a great sale

I hope that you will be able to print this letter, as I would like to commend Jo Siberry, the manager and Adam, who both work in Chancellors, St Mark's Hill, Surbiton, who have just sold a property for me.

Estate agents get a bad press, which is sometimes justified, but I must say that Jo and her team were courteous, efficient, polite and totally honest in all their dealings with me and I totally commend their efforts. I would recommend them to anybody, as trust is the most important aspect in any dealings.

A clearer picture of police stations' future

I was surprised to read the comments of our MP, that he had not heard of the Metropolitan Police consultation on the future of our police stations.

Our experience in the south of the borough is very different, we have both known about it and actively participated.

Our representative attended the public consultation meeting, as did other Chessington and Hook residents, which was held by Mrs Nicholson, the borough Commander, at Kingston College.

A full presentation was made of last year's excellent crime statistics, the ambitious targets for this year and the plans to work toward relocating police premises.

A useful document describing the plans, which include establishing contact point facilities, was available.

When, a short time later, Kingston Council decided to surrender the lease on the Hook housing offices and relocated the staff to the new Hook Centre, which is directly opposite, we realised that there was a golden opportunity to establish a police post, manned by volunteers, at the heart of the community.

Tony Arbour, our GLA member, who then also served on the Metropolitan Police Authority (MPA), contacted the police.

This was to advise them of this opportunity and request that they consider the location.

He subsequently arranged that a leaflet describing the proposal was delivered to all residences south of the A3.

After the Community and Police Partnership meeting in early March, the borough commander held a short meeting with Chessington and Hook residents present to discuss the proposal.

It was explained that there had for a long time been widespread support in the community for a police presence in Hook Parade and how it would greatly contribute to the building of a "community hub".

Mrs Nicholson agreed to inspect the site.

Join campaign to stop 'rent robbery' MEP Kamall's Spanish scare

Derek Moss, supporters of Defend Council Housing and others who want to help tenants and leaseholders should join the campaign to demand the immediate release of Kingston from the crippling negative subsidy of £6.7m, where £3 in every £10 of rent is stolen by this Labour Government and will be spent where they like.

With that £6.7m we could start a full repairs service immediately and begin to make homes decent, more secure and with better environments.

Another reason for putting an instant stop to the robbery is that Kingston has the smallest stock in London and yet

Kingston pays the highest rate of negative subsidy per property of all the London boroughs.

This is yet another blunder by this Labour Government that doesn't seem to know what it is doing.

COUNCILLOR PENNY
SHELTON

I have been contacted by a number of Londoners facing problems with property bought in Spain.

They have told me about how land has been taken away from owners and handed to developers or how some owners face unexpected and unfair bills from municipalities, lawyers or developers.

I am working alongside MEPs to put pressure on the Spanish authorities to clean up their act.

It shocks me to think that Londoners are investing their hard-earned cash into property that can later be taken with little or no compensation.

This is something we must stamp out before anyone else falls foul of it.

Readers who are having problems with a Spanish property can email me at syed.kamall@europarl.europa.eu or write to me at Syed Kamall MEP, Unit 11 Kingsmill Business Park, Chapel Mill Lane, Kingston KT1 3GZ.

Having a good moan at this shower of a council

I'm writing this to have a moan. I am a Kingston Council tenant trying to look after my property to the best I can on the budget that I have.

Recently the switch to my shower broke.

I rang the council to see if they can repair it but, because I have a bath, they say they will not repair it.

I do not understand this one bit.

Today I have gone and bought a new switch from Homebase and now I have to find someone to fit it for me.

I am not an electrician and do not wish to try to do it myself, but having said that I don't have lots of money to read through the yellow pages to find an electrician (the receptionist's idea).

Journalist Emma Burstall's first novel, Gym and Slimline, inspired by her membership of a Kingston gym, will be published in August. She spoke to ALITA HOWE.

A writing career that has worked out well

How did you get into writing?

I read English at Cambridge University and then was a journalist for many years – starting at the Western Morning News and then later as features editor for Family Circle and Woman magazine.

I had always wanted to write a novel but there never seemed to be the time.

Where did your inspiration for the book come from?

I was on maternity leave with my third child, Freddie, in 2002 and I joined the Esporta gym in Richmond Road.

I did not bank on meeting a lovely new circle of friends and that gave me the idea for the novel. I had the ideas of characters in my head for a while but needed a backdrop.

I thought, what a great backdrop the gym would be as all of life passes through it.

How did the book come to fruition?

I went on holiday to New York in 2004 to see my sister and had the idea for the novel scribbled on the back of an envelope.

Write stuff: Emma Burstall

Because of the jet lag I was waking up early and going down into my sister's basement to write. I had a huge breakthrough and wrote 30,000 words in two weeks.

When I got back it was very stop start and I had to fit writing around working but I finished it last June.

The book revolves around four very different female characters.

How did you come up with the idea for them and their personalities?

The characters are purely fictional and a mish-mash of different people I have come across during my life and interviews, along with a large dose of my imagination and snippets I have read in newspapers and magazines.

How did you find the publishing process?

I was incredibly lucky. My friend put me in touch with someone – I sent her the first 30,000 words and she fortunately liked it and took me on straight away.

I was on holiday in France and my agent called and said I'd got a two book deal with Preface, a new imprint of Random House.

I'm now on my way with the second book – the first draft is due in October.

Honour among Thebes

Oedipus regrets:
Catherine Hamilton
plays Antigone

If theatre critics were offered a commission for every time the phrase 'as relevant today as when it was written' is trotted out by playwrights and directors, I could retire a happy man.

But for actor Paul Bentall, who shines as Creon in Seamus Heaney's The Burial at Thebes – his acclaimed translation of Sophocles' Antigone – the mantra really does hold true.

Speaking by phone from New Haven, USA, he explains: "We just did a production in Charleston, North Carolina on the same stage where Barack Obama recently gave his campaign address.

"So for me to go onto that stage and give my opening speech, which feels like an election address to a modern audience, was a weird feeling.

"The speech is about patriotism, and talking about patriotism to an American audience is completely different to a British audience.

"They are much more openly patriotic than us."

Heaney's adaptation documents the dramatic tale of conflict between personal loyalties and responsibility to the state.

With the city of Thebes in chaos following the death of Oedipus, Antigone clashes with her uncle Creon over the direction for the city.

What follows is a classic confrontation between youth and

THEATRE: Burial At Thebes, Rose Theatre, Kingston

Simon Fitzjohn

"It is a truly wonderful piece of work. When they originally did it in Greece they would have had a huge chorus experience, male and female, divine law and human law, family and state – and the outcome can only be bloody.

Bentall admits that when he was offered the role he jumped at the chance: "It is a truly wonderful piece of work. It is not often that you get a chance to play these huge roles.

"When they originally did it in Greece they would have had a huge chorus but we have stripped it down somewhat.

"Even so, the set gives it a real sense of weight and grandeur."

The 59-year old is far less positive though when talking about the state of theatre in modern Britain.

Bentall has forged a successful and lengthy career thanks to his switching between stage and big-screen roles in the likes of Flash Gordon and First Knight.

And he agrees that venues like the Rose are essential to the future of the arts.

He adds: "The profession has changed a huge amount since I started out. When I began my parents were thrilled when I said I wanted to act as they were happy to see me get started in something.

"But there are not so many theatres around and it is much more difficult to get involved.

"Now it is quite rare to know what you are doing from one job to the next. When the funding is cut houses are forced to close and that destroys the roots of theatre.

"The struggle that some theatres have merely in order to survive is monumental."

Hawkes eye on the future

Mention the name Chesney Hawkes and you are likely to be immediately hit by a lung-bursting refrain of cheese classic The One And Only.

But 17 years on from that seminal 'one-hit wonder' and Chesney is still going strong. With his latest album Another Fine Mess, and the Surrey-based artist still knee-deep in production duties, Hawkes feels blessed to still be doing what he loves.

He says: "I am still making music which I'm lucky to be able to do. I had no other ambition since I was a kid."

"The album has been a labour of love and has taken the best part of eight years to write. It is very strong and I am proud of it."

Hawkes splits his time between the UK and Los Angeles – but he was on our televisions recently as part of a judging panel on Britain's Got More Talent.

And the 36-year-old has this to say on reality TV culture: "My roots tell me it is not a good thing as it has created an 'I just want to be famous' culture. Music should come from playing in bedrooms or a sweaty pub and having a passion.

"But, as a songwriter, it has opened up many new avenues as there is a plethora of artists who need songs writing for them!"

And Chesney admits it is strange to look back at his time in the limelight: "With The One And Only, I did not really appreciate what I had as I was in the eye of the storm. Watching old footage is like seeing a different person."

"I have good memories but it seems a different lifetime. You just have to keep the faith and get your music to the people."

Cutting-Edge dancing

Award-winning director and choreographer Jonathan Lunn has never been one to take the easy route with his projects.

Over an illustrious career, he has directed Cambodian dancers and musicians, collaborated on a performance with the late Anthony Minghella, choreographed sequences for hit film Love Actually, and directed shows at La Scala and the English National Opera.

Now Lunn turns things on its head again with Reading Room, a further collaboration with Minghella, designer Peter Mumford and composer Gary Yershon. Five dancers will act out a full-length dance performance which runs alongside original text. The aim is to examine the connections, disconnections, pacts, secrets and lies that underpin human interactions.

Celebrities including Miranda Richardson, Alan Rickman and Julian Sands are on the roll call. And for Kingston, the reader is Dexter Fletcher, famed for his work as a child star in Bugsy Malone and Press Gang and, latterly, in hit movies Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels and Layer Cake, along with TV stints in Hotel Babylon and The Virgin Queen.

Lunn hopes the text, along with Fletcher's delivery, will create a world where physical language corresponds to the way the spoken word can be used to communicate, misunderstand, clarify, mislead and express our inner thoughts and our love or loathing of each other.

A further point of interest is that Lunn has added a separate component, entitled Disassembly, where a local dance company will get their opportunity to shine at each venue.

For the Rose, that will see EDge, the London contemporary dance school, take to the stage.

BRAND NEW TV SERIES TURNS YOUR HOUSE INTO A DREAM HOME

Fed up with your house but can't afford to move?

Frustrated with the layout but haven't the confidence to change it?

Do you want to create a home you'll never want to leave?

One of Britain's hottest architects wants to get his hands on your house. George Clarke and his design team can help you fall back in love with your property. He'll handle all aspects of the build, design and interiors, taking away all the hassle but in return you'll have to trust him. We are looking for houses with huge potential for change and home owners with reasonable budgets we will boost, to help them get the home of their dreams.

If you'd like to be inspired NOT to climb the property ladder but improve what you've already got this summer, email us at vikkiaharris@tigeraspect.co.uk Or call 020 7529 9535

CLASSICAL: Carolyn Sampson, Kingston Parish Church

Simon
Fitzjohn

Sampson's strength: The talented soprano joins Kingston Choral next Saturday

Internationally renowned soprano Carolyn Sampson makes a guest appearance at Kingston Parish Church this weekend as Kingston Choral Society throws its annual bash with a celebration of baroque music. Sampson, widely regarded as one of the UK's finest sopranos, is particularly acclaimed for her performances in early music repertoire.

The Bedford-based singer is a regular with the English National Opera and her recent highlights have included appearances alongside the Academy of Ancient Music, Halle Orchestra, Freiburg Baroque Orchestra and the Orchestre National de Bordeaux to name but a few. Sampson takes time out of her busy schedule to partake in the Kingston programme, which will feature Handel's Dixit Dominus and Bach's Magnificat.

Guest conductor will be Christopher Dawe, who recently took up a teaching post at Hampton School, Dawe, who previously conducted the Budapest Festival Orchestra and Newbury Symphony Orchestra, will be accompanied by Purcell Orchestra for the evening.

Also on hand will be an impressive slate of world talent which should guarantee an evening to remember.

Mezzo soprano is New Zealander Wendy Dawn Thompson, who has just completed a stint in Harrison Birtwistle's opera The Minotaur in Covent Garden. While American Sena Larard, a former cellist, will also provide vocals having performed globally in operatic roles.

Tenor soloist is Nathan Vale, who can list the Albert Hall, St Paul's Cathedral and Edinburgh's Usher Hall as venues he has performed in.

Topping things off is Czech baritone Vojtech Safarik, who graduated from the Prague Conservatory in 2005. Safarik has worked alongside conductors Sir Charles Mackerras and Sir Roger Norrington, and has a lead role in Handel's Saul under his belt.

Don't miss your last chance to see the Society in action before their summer break.

Top brass with Byron

Described by Echoes magazine as "a key mover and shaker in the generation of London jazz-based talent", trumpeter Byron Wallen is used to being in demand.

Having worked with such varied talents as Courtney Pine, The Style Council, The Roots and Wynton Marsalis, Wallen's excellence has ensured a lengthy and distinguished career.

As part of a musical family, it did not take long for Byron to get in on the act, first learning the piano and then the euphonium.

Eventually, he settled on the trumpet and studied the instrument in New York alongside Jimmy Owens, Donald Byrd and Jon Faddis.

Returning to Britain, Byron spent the 90s recording with a range of artists and also managed to fit in a world tour with Incognito.

It was little surprise that a man of such

MUSIC: Byron Wallen Trio, Riverhouse

Simon Fitzjohn

talents would unleash his own work on the world and, sure enough, 1995 saw the release of his first album, Sound Advice.

The pinnacle of his solo projects has undoubtedly been for Indigo, which garnered the BBC prize for Innovation In Jazz in 2003.

Wallen has even appeared in film roles and can count The Talented Mr Ripley and Fine Young Things among his credits.

At Riverhouse, Wallen will be bringing his trio, comprising Larry Bartley and Tom Skinner. Double-bass supremo Bartley is a staple on the London jazz scene, having worked alongside such greats as Soweto Kinch.

While drummer Tom had his first gig aged just 13. He has enjoyed residencies at London's Jazz Café and toured with many popular names.

No doubt fans of contemporary and cutting-edge jazz will be in for a rare treat.

Byron Wallen Trio, Riverhouse, Sunday, June 22, 7.30pm, £5/£10, call 01932 253354.

The ayes have it

Once in every few years a Korean car arrives that further closes the gap between South East Asia and the best of Europe. The Hyundai i30 is the latest such car and it's at its best in CRDi diesel form. Andy Enright reports

The i30 is but one step in a very long path towards what Hyundai hopes will be a place at the very top table of car makers.

When it was first revealed at the 2007 Geneva Motor Show, most thought of this car as a rebadged and soon to be overpriced version of the Kia cee'd and missed its true significance.

Spark up the Hyundai i30 CRDi diesel and you'll be pleasantly surprised at its lack of diesel clatter at idle. There are two versions of the 1.6 engine, the mainstream one generating 114bhp from its 1.6-litres and a green special with 90bhp that's designed to sidestep congestion charging.

Then you have a 128bhp 2.0-litre diesel to top off the range.

The higher power 1.6-litre diesel I tried is a very well-mannered unit with no nasty lag and lunge effects, instead delivering a linear stream of power. The manual five-speed gearchange is a little clunky and there's a fair amount of wind and tyre noise at motorway speeds but other than that, it generates a very favourable report card. The steering is very good, body control through corners is exemplary and the pedals are nicely weighted.

Two bodystyles are available – five-door hatch and estate, the station wagon doing without the top 2.0-litre CRDi diesel engine.

The quality of the materials and the construction in the cabin is convincing. Nice touches include blue illumination for the dials that also extends to steering wheel controls and ignition key slot so you won't be fumbling around at night. Dim the illumination and the wheel-mounted controls dim too, which is very slick.

Space is plentiful for the rear seat occupants and the huge boot suggested by the car's bulging rear end is only a mild disappointment.

The Hyundai i30 diesel is a winner when it comes to cost of ownership, the 114bhp 1.6-litre unit managing 60.1 mpg on the combined cycle with the 2.0-litre faring only slightly worse at 51.4mpg.

The i30 is a landmark car for Hyundai in the same way the old Coupe and the second generation Santa Fe have proved.

It's a formidable achievement and one that looks set to sell extremely well.

Welcome to more for less at Jemca Kingston

The new Auris SR is a real head turner, packed with exciting features and characteristics that stand out from the crowd. What's even better is that the stylish SR now comes with the option of 0% finance, so it's easier than ever to get into one.

The sporty looks of the Auris body shape are enhanced by Toyota Motorsport 17" Pitlane alloy wheels, lowered sports suspension and spoiler. Driver and passenger comfort is ensured by privacy glass, dual-zone climate controlled air conditioning and a 6 speaker radio/CD player with MP3 disc compatibility.

DAY OF FUN FOR THE JUNIOR TIGERS

yourlocalguardian.co.uk

Future stars in spotlight

Kingston Mayor Dave Berry has backed next month's Balfour Beatty London Youth Games, claiming some of this year's stars could take centre stage at the London Olympics in 2012.

More than 25,000 youngsters will compete in 33 sports over the next month, with the finals weekend starting on July 5 at Crystal Palace.

Past LYG competitors include cyclist Bradley Wiggins, 400m runner Christine Ohuruogu, footballer Rio Ferdinand and NBA superstar Luol Deng.

And, with only four years to go until the London Games, it is hoped this year's event will play a major role in athletes fulfilling their dreams of representing their country on home soil.

"There is a real enthusiasm for sport in this borough, and the games provide the perfect opportunity for our young stars to shine," said Berry.

"I have no doubt we'll see some of this year's competitors lining up in the Olympics, when they come to London in 2012."

Butt's on fire

A superb effort with the ball by Moteen Butt could not prevent Kingstonian going down to the narrowest of defeats against Chertsey.

Butt took 7-23 from 10.4 overs but just failed to stop the visitors winning by one wicket.

He was also second top scorer with 25 behind Imran Khalid (41) as Ks were bowled out for 148.

A five-wicket burst from Butt reduced the visitors to 58-5 and Ks were in the driving seat.

Chertsey fought back and won a thriller with their last pair at the wicket.

New signing excites Dowson

by STUART AMOS

samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingstonian boss Alan Dowson thinks the acquisition of number one transfer target Adam Thompson last week opens up the possibility of switching to a 3-5-2 formation next season.

The 25-year-old former Walton & Hersham and Staines Town star put pen to paper on a deal last week, following fellow defender Max Hustwick on to the list of new faces at Kingsmeadow.

The pair could make one of the best centre-back partnerships in the Ryman League Division One South next season as Dowson goes after an improvement on last year's seventh place finish.

The Ks manager is now eyeing a new centre forward after strengthening significantly at the other end this summer, and is still hoping AFC Wimbledon's Mark Beard will turn down the option of playing in Cyprus. Thompson, who starred in Staines' FA Cup run earlier this year, adds to the competition for places at the back with Wayne Finnie also pushing for a starting spot.

And Dowson has not ruled out the potential to field all three in a new-look formation for the coming campaign.

"Of all the signings Adam has been my number one target and I think the fans will take to him as well," he said.

"He has played at a higher level, but I think he believes we can achieve something next season and that clinched it for him.

"There are no guaranteed places here. He won't just walk in to the back four with Wayne Finnie about. We may even go to a system where we have three at the back.

"When I look at the squad from last year I felt we only needed one or two new faces to take us to the next level, which is why we haven't gone crazy with bringing in new players. A striker is still a priority."

Great Britain representatives: KGS pair Toby Mumford and Will Perham David James

GB call-up for Kingston duo

Kingston Grammar School oarsmen Toby Mumford and Will Perham have been selected to row for Great Britain at this year's Junior World Championships in Linz, Austria.

Toby and Will were among the top 16 junior candidates invited to an early GB trial to select the top priority boats – the coxed and coxless fours. Both made it into the top eight.

KGS head coach Colin Greenaway was delighted for the pair. He said: "Will and Toby have had a tremendous season rowing together as a pair and in the first eight crew that triumphed at the Eton National Regatta, and I am delighted that their talents have been recognised."

SPORTSbrief

CROQUET: England will be looking for their seventh successive Home International croquet title in Surbiton this weekend. Surbiton Croquet Club plays host to teams from England, Wales, Ireland and Scotland with the English squad, which has only lost this event three times in 20 years, looking to defend their six-year undefeated run. The match, over the all-play-all format, starts in Alexandra Drive at 9.30am on Saturday and finishes on Sunday afternoon.

Regular updates:
yourlocalguardian.co.uk

RUGBY: Kingston Tigers (pictured above) held a day of fun games and a barbecue to promote the club. Children aged five-plus are invited to join them to play tag rugby and rugby each Sunday from 10am to noon. Call Darren Setters on 07952 175811.

More details: kingstonrfc.com

VOLLEYBALL: Hosts Richard Challoner School won the first U13 Kingston Schools Boys Volleyball Cluster Finals. The event featured six teams and a total of 36 youngsters from Chessington, Southborough and Richard Challoner.

Final placings: 1 Richard Challoner A, 2 Chessington B, 3 Chessington A, 4 Southborough A, 5 Southborough B, 6 Richard Challoner B.

Community sport:
yourlocalguardian.co.uk

CROSS COUNTRY: The 200th Bushy Park time trial was held on Saturday, with the winning time exactly three minutes quicker than the maiden race in October 2004. Stragglers' Jimmy Goulis took the honours, in 15 minutes, 47 seconds.
